

प्रोटीन सिंहासन — The Protein Throne (Hindi Script)

Reading this script

The dialogue is in conversational Hinglish, the way people actually talk on Reels. English words like protein, crunch, snack and check stay in English on purpose. Each line has Devanagari (for Hindi TTS / voice artists) and Roman script (for captions and the team).

Character	Voice direction
Narrator	Over-serious, mythological-TV-serial style. Deep, slow, dramatic pauses.
Makhana	Posh and royal. Nasal, delicate, over-polite, easily offended.
Peanut	Desi pehelwan. Loud, proud, "bhai" in every line.
Protein Chips	Filmy superhero. Hero-entry energy, over-the-top announcements.
Protein Bar	Gym bro. Deep, clipped, talks like a fitness coach.
PROMUNCH Edamame	Calm, deep baritone, deadpan. Never raises his voice. Every line lands like a mic drop.
Crown	Echoing, regal, slightly bored.

Production notes

Claim check: "100g में 45g तक PROTEIN" and "King of Protein Snacks" must be matched to the approved labels for each flavour before lock. A superiority claim like "King" may need substantiation under ASCI comparative-advertising rules, so keep all rival snacks generic and unbranded.

Timing: Hindi lines run about 10-15% longer than English. Episode 3 is the tightest; if it runs past 50s, trim the three flavour-warrior lines first.

Changes from the English draft (to make the jokes land in Hindi):

Original	Hindi adaptation	Why
"Can gates be biased?"	ये gate की setting है, पक्का (Ye gate ki setting hai, pakka)	"Setting" is desi slang for a rigged deal
"Unfortunately... check."	दिल पे पत्थर रख के... check (Dil pe patthar rakh ke... check)	Familiar idiom, funnier with a mouth full

Original	Hindi adaptation	Why
"Minister of Air"	हवा मंत्री (Hawa Mantri)	Double meaning: air, and "hawa-hawaai" (all show, no substance)
"Delivering it is harder."	निभाना मुश्किल (Nibhaana mushkil)	"Likhna aasaan, nibhaana mushkil" has a filmy dialogue rhythm
"Long live the King"	जय हो! (Jai ho!)	Natural Indian chant, easier for a crowd
Crown line (new)	ताज छीना नहीं जाता, कमाया जाता है	Explains the four tests in one line
Flavour warriors (new lines)	One line each	Gives each flavour its own shareable moment
